Approach and Methodology

Questionnaire Design

The questionnaire used for the 2026 Wyoming Election Year Survey was based on the questionnaire used in previous iterations of this recurring survey. For 2026, SPPAIS refined and reorganized the questions, eliminated questions that were no longer of interest or not applicable, and added new questions on the most important problem facing Wyoming, approval of the Wyoming Freedom Caucus, feeling thermometer ratings of the Wyoming Republican Party, the Wyoming Democratic Party, and the Wyoming Freedom Caucus, tourism, large data center projects, restrictions on renewable energy development, the sale of public lands, poll watchers, hand-count audits, and respondents' views of their own political party.

The web and telephone versions of the questionnaire used the same questions, wording, and response options, and the two versions were reconciled item by item before fielding. Telephone interviewers did not read a "Don't know" option, while web respondents could select one, so "Don't know" responses are more common on the web. Following the 2024 reporting convention, percentages in this report exclude "Don't know" and refused responses; their counts are shown under each table.

Sample Design

The Wyoming Election Year Survey (WEYS) is an overlapping dual-frame RDD telephone survey. "Dual-frame" refers to sampling both the landline and cell phone frames. "Overlap" refers to the telephone survey methodology where dual users, individuals who can be reached on both the cell phone and the landline frames, can come from either frame.[1] This frame is widely considered to provide the most coverage in the state, and provides equal opportunity for all Wyoming residents to be selected to participate in the survey.

The eligible population was noninstitutionalized adults 18 years of age and older.

All phones were treated as a single-user device. The adult aged 18 or older reached via a cell phone that answered the phone was selected. For records with an email address and/or a mailing address appended, those who had completed the survey online were treated as single users and no random selection within the household was performed.

[1] An overlap design is distinguished from a screened design. In a screened design dual-users selected from the cell phone frame are screened out.

Telephone sample for this project was purchased from our scientific survey sample vendor, Marketing Systems Group (MSG). The two frames utilized were Listed Landline frame (Listed LL), and the Advanced Cellular Frame (ACF). The Listed LL frame consists of all listed landline telephone numbers in Wyoming. The Advanced Cellular Frame, a proprietary MSG product, includes both listed and RDD frames, providing the best opportunity to include nearly every cellular telephone in our target geography. Importantly, this frame includes the in-ward migration population in Wyoming that may have a number from another geography.

For both sample frames (Listed LL and ACF), MSG appended known mailing address and known email address, where possible. MSG updates this information daily from over 200 authoritative sources, such as those used in identity authentication and validation of digital transactions. The append rate is a property of the numbers drawn and cannot be ordered or controlled.

Sample Management

Upon receipt of the survey sample, email invitations were fielded to all who had a valid email address associated with the phone record. An invitation letter that encouraged completing the survey on the web was sent to all with a valid mailing address appended, including those who also received an email. Sample with no email or mailing address information were fielded in the phone mode only, beginning at the start of the field period. For records with email append and/or mailing address append, records were moved to the phone mode after the email and/or mailing efforts occurred and no final disposition was achieved. Every sample record, including the phone-only records, was assigned a unique six-character access code, so that telephone interviewers could also offer the web option.

For the landline sample, only numbers which were not pre-screened as disconnected, cellphone, or businesses were released for calling. For the cellular sample, MSG's screening service was used to prescreen non-working cellular numbers from the cellular sample prior to telephone fielding. Before calling, all numbers were also screened through a commercial phone-validation service for line type and for association with Telephone Consumer Protection Act (TCPA) litigation or do-not-call complaints.

In total, 26,000 telephone numbers were generated for this study from the ACF and Listed LL frames. After removing those sample members pre-screened by the sample provider as disconnected, non-working, or business numbers, 11,277 valid cellular numbers and 616 valid landline numbers remained (11,893 total records). After removing 28 duplicate records (the same person reached at a second telephone number), 11,865 records were fielded. Compared with 2024, fewer records arrived with an appended email or mailing address (42.0% of cellular records had both, compared with 50.7% in 2024), and the Listed LL frame was about one-third smaller due to continued attrition of landline telephone numbers.

A total of 5,168 sample records had an email match, to which were sent an email invitation, an email reminder, a second reminder tailored to each record's telephone follow-up status, and a final email. About 10.5% of the matched email addresses (543) were undeliverable. A total of 5,764 records had a valid mailing address match, making them eligible for a paper invite to the web; this includes all of the 5,168 sample members with an email address. A single invitation letter was mailed to approximately 5,764 records. Finally, approximately 41,000 attempts were made by phone to the 11,608 records loaded for calling that did not respond via email or letter (or did not have that information appended), an average of 3.5 attempts per record, over 971 hours of calling, in an effort to reach a final disposition.

New for 2026, every respondent who completed the survey, in either mode, was offered a $5 electronic gift card as a thank-you for participating. The gift card was delivered by email, and the name and email address needed to send it were kept separate from survey answers. A total of 356 respondents (54.2% of those offered) accepted the gift card.

Fielding Period

Individuals who had valid emails were invited to complete the survey via email. Initial email invites were emailed to 5,168 individuals on 9/29/2026. Invite letters that encouraged individuals to complete the survey via the web were mailed to approximately 5,764 records on 9/29/2026 to 9/30/2026. Records with no email or mail information appended were fielded via phone starting on 9/29/2026. An email reminder was sent on 10/8/2026 to the 4,966 individuals who had not responded to the initial email invite. On 10/12/2026, the 5,514 remaining unresolved cases with an email and/or mailing address were moved to the phone mode. A second email reminder was sent on 10/16/2026 to the 4,153 email-matched records that had not completed the survey, refused, unsubscribed, or bounced; its wording varied with whether the record had already been called and a voicemail left (1,509 records), called without a voicemail left (2,566 records), or not yet called. A final email was sent to 3,269 records on the morning of 10/26/2026. Well-trained WYSAC telephone interviewers conducted the telephone interviews, totaling 971 hours of calling. Calling began on 9/29/2026 and concluded on 10/25/2026, and data collection closed that evening. Throughout the fielding period, calling took place on Sunday through Thursday evenings until 9 PM, as well as Friday and Saturday afternoon beginning at noon.

Response Rates

A total of 327 completed surveys were received on the web as a result of the email and/or letter invitation effort. From the follow-up phone mode, an additional 333 surveys were completed. A total of 660 surveys were completed from a random selection of adults in Wyoming. When a sample record produced both a web and a phone interview, both were retained only if the two interviews reported a different gender or age (four sample records, or eight interviews, treated as different household members); otherwise the phone interview was retained.

For a simple random sample of this size, the margin of error is approximately plus-or-minus 3.8 percentage points for survey questions asked of the entire respondent pool. Accounting for the design effect due to weighting (1.54), the margin of error is plus-or-minus 4.7 percentage points at the 95% confidence level for a percentage near 50% based on all respondents. Margins of error are larger for subgroups and for questions asked of only part of the sample.

Weighting

The respondents' county of residence is defined by the respondent supplied county; it is not defined by the county assigned by the frame. For the 2 (0.3%) respondents who did not provide county of residence, we impute the county of residence from the frame data.

All respondents are required to have nonmissing values for the distributions used in the weighting procedure. Missing age was filled from birth year where available, and missing age and gender were then filled from the frame data. For the other variables used in the calibration, we applied a Hot-Deck imputation procedure to impute for the missing values, which were then used in the weighting procedure only. The original survey responses are unchanged, and the tables in this report show respondents' actual answers.

The variables used in the weighting procedure were: Age Group, Gender, County of Residence, Party Affiliation[2], and Educational Attainment[3]. Weights were computed by raking (iterative proportional fitting) to these benchmarks for Wyoming adults 18 years of age and older.

[2] Party Affiliation benchmark is the Wyoming Secretary of State, Statewide Summary of Voter Registration, 10/1/2026. Following the 2024 method, respondents registered to vote in Wyoming were assigned their registered party, and all others were assigned their self-identified party from the "Generally speaking, do you usually think of yourself as..." question (asked of all). Wyoming has no Independent registration, so Independent and other parties were grouped with Unaffiliated. Remaining missing values were imputed for the weighting procedure via hot-deck imputation procedure.

[3] Benchmarks for Age, Gender, and County were obtained from U.S. Census Bureau, Vintage 2025 county population estimates by age and sex, July 1, 2025. Benchmarks for Education were obtained from U.S. Census Bureau, American Community Survey 2024 1-year estimates, table B15001. All benchmarks are for Wyoming adults 18 years of age and older.

Adjacent small counties were combined into 14 county groups so that every group had at least 23 respondents. As in 2024, no base weight was applied, because selection was effectively equal-probability. Weights were trimmed at the 5th and 95th percentiles and rescaled to a mean of 1.0. The design effect due to weighting is 1.54, giving an effective sample size of 429.

Respondents were more likely than Wyoming adults overall to report being registered to vote (about 92% of those answering, compared with about 61% of Wyoming adults). Raking does not correct this, because registration is not a weighting variable, and it cannot correct nonresponse bias on characteristics that were not measured.

Results

Results are presented for all survey questions, beginning with respondent demographics and followed by the remaining questions in questionnaire order, grouped by the topic sections of the questionnaire. Weighted percents (in bold) are the estimates for Wyoming adults; frequencies and unweighted percents describe the respondents. Percents exclude "Don't know" and refused responses and respondents who were not asked the question.
